

The high penetration of PV systems in distribution networks might give rise to overvoltage. A solution is controlling the reactive power output of the PV inverters based on V-Q droop control ...

